Pearson Air Museum

Announces More Affordable Admission Rates;

New $22 Family Rate Admits Two Adults and Up to Four Students

(Vancouver, Washington) -- In an effort to make visiting Pearson Air Museum more affordable, the museum has reduced its adult admission rates, allowed teens up to age 17 for the student rate and added a family rate effective immediately. The new rates are:

- Adults (age 18-54): $7 (reduced from the previous $8)
- Seniors (age 55+) and active military with ID: $5
- Students (ages 6-17): $5 (previously teenagers paid adult admission)
- Children under 6, museum members and school groups: Free
- Family rate (2 adults and up to 4 students): $22 (new category)

Adult membership to Pearson begins at $35 and includes free admission to the Olympic Flight Museum in Olympia and the Museum of Flight in Seattle.

Pearson Air Museum is open Wednesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is located at 1115 East Fifth Street, Vancouver, Washington, on the Vancouver National Historic Reserve just east of historic Fort Vancouver. Pearson Air Museum tells the story of Pearson Field, one of the oldest active airfields in the United States. The museum is managed by Vancouver National Historic Reserve Trust. For info call 360-694-7026 or visit www.pearsonairmuseum.org/.
